JUNIOR ORDER RECEPTION

Despite the downpour of rain Tuesday night there gathered in the lodge room of the Junior Order United American Mechanics practically ever member of the Order who lives in the community. With them came their wives, sweethearts and friends, to help make a "big night" of the eagerly awaited Junior Night. The bad weather seemed to whet appetites both for the pleasure of the social hour and for the "eats."

As an appetizer the managers had planned for some speeches. The Vice Councillor of the State, D. W. Cobb, of Goldsboro, was there and "delivered the goods" in true Junior Style, interspersing his timely remarks with table humor.

State Councillor Reed was expected but was unable to be present. When this became known local talent was brought in and Rev. T. S. Crutchfield and L. N. Taylor endeavored to take his place, showing the foundation principals on which the Order was built and why it should be supported. The Roanoke Rapids Band were at their best and furnished music to the "Queen's taste."

Oysters a la George Crenshaw and barbecue Oliver Burton style was the grand climax. Everybody had a good time and the fortunate ones congratulated themselves on their luck.

COMPARATIVE REPORTS FOR DECEMBER GROUP MEETING

At our Group Meeting during December, each school made a report of attendance and enrollment based upon the actual census of the district. By "actual census" is meant the number of children the teacher has a right to expect in her school between the ages of six and twenty one. When the notes were compared, it was very interesting to note which school was most efficient along the line of not only enrolling all the children on the actual census list, but was keeping them there every day as well.

Are you satisfied with the showing your school made? If not, arouse your community to action and report 100 per cent attendance next time. Watch the fifth column grow and see what group is in the lead then!

COMMUNITY SUFFERS WHEN PAPER SUSPENDS

Discussing the discontinuance of a good many country newspapers because war time prices and scarcity of help forced them out of existence, the Ohio farmer says it is a serious loss and makes this argument for these newspapers:

"During the war and afterward the prices of white paper, of labor and all kinds of materials that go to make a publication have increased so rapidly that they have kept about two jumps ahead of the publisher's income. Many publications of local circulation have been forced to discontinue, at least temporarily."

"This is unfortunate for the publisher, but it is more unfortunate for the community. Without a good local paper, what channel is there for the news of the town and the surrounding country? What greater asset can a town have than a good, wideawake, progressive, honest and fearless newspaper to keep its people informed as to the local goings on and to help mold local public opinion?"

Work to Revive Papers

The people of places where publication have been compelled to discontinue should use every effort to get these local papers on their feet again; and those which have kept going, but which may be making a valiant struggle to keep their heads above the surface of the economic puddle, should have the cordial support of the public and the advertisers who seek the trade of the locality. With all their increased expenses, it has not been possible for many conscientious publishers to enlarge their income without taking arbitrary steps and many of them are men of such moral caliber that they hesitate to do this, lest it weaken their influence for good in the future.

"Help build up and maintain a good local paper. The world news is important and can be had from the city dailies; but of news that centers in your own stamping ground and your own home circle the local newspaper is the only source."

MISS ANNIE CHERRY AN ACTIVE SUPERVISOR

School supervisors in North Carolina are said to be determined to win the contest now underway with the Virginia supervisors for the honor of making the best record in organizing savings societies in the public schools. In the recent contest between North Carolina and South Carolina the Old North State was winner by a wide margin.

Miss Annie Cherry, who is the supervisor of public schools for Halifax County, is looked upon, it is said, as one of the most active and enterprising workers in the Fifth Federal Reserve District, and is expected to make an excellent showing in this section. If other supervisors are equally successful it is believed that this state will win the contest.

There are many more school supervisors in Virginia than in North Carolina, and, in many instances, they are working in teams of two or more to a county. Therefore - and practically all of the North Carolina supervisors are working singly - it was decided that the Old North State should fairly be given a handicap. This was fixed at the ratio of two to five, which means that North Carolina supervisors are expected to organize two savings societies for every five organized in Virginia.

In North Carolina the contest closes this week; in Virginia it will close February 13 - each running two weeks. Other parts of the district are watching the race with considerable interest. Both parts of the district are watching the race with considerable interest. Both states in the contest have made good records, and it is agreed that each will have to put forth extraordinary efforts if it expects to win.

Last Friday night the Vault of the Patterson Mills Company was robbed of about eight thousand dollars. Entrance was gained by the robbers by smashing the screen and glass of a front window. They next removed the fuses from the light switch in order not to be seen, should the night watchman turn on the lights. The door of the vault was opened by using the proper combination. This being accomplished the rest was easy and a safe get-away was made. The money stolen was the weekly payroll of the mill and was in some four hundred pay envelopes. This required a new payroll to be made up and delayed the paying off of the operatives till Tuesday.

The Rosemary Graded School was entered by thieves Saturday night evidently for the purpose of purloining the money saved by the Thrift Societies of the children for the purpose of purchase of Saving Stamps. They were rewarded by the findings of only four pennies, feeling sore over the result of their efforts they became vandals for a time and tore up records filled the floors with books, marked maps and mutilated several song books.

Sunday afternoon someone entered Taylor Drug Store through a rear window and rifled the cash drawer of fifteen dollars.

F. M. HIGHT DEAD

Mr. Frederick M. Hight, a prominent young business man of Rosemary died in the Roanoke Hospital at nine o'clock Tuesday night, after an illness lasting about four months.

Mr. Hight and his family came here the first of last September and became manager of the Patterson Store Co., with splendid prospects ahead of him.

Although here for only a short time he and his young wife made many friends who are deeply pained at his death.

He was a communicant of the Episcopal Church a member of the Choir, a member of the Masonic fraternity and a genetician. Funeral services were held in Henderson and interment was made there.

A. H. HORNER DEAD

J. M. Underwood Dictator of the Loyal Order of Moose, went to Goldsboro Tuesday in response to a phone message announcing the death of A. H. Horner. Mr. Horner was at one time a resident of Roanoke Rapids, also a member of the Loyal Order of Moose, his membership beginning with the lodge at this place.

Mr. Underwood carried with him a funeral benefit of $100.00 which was delivered to the widow of the deceased, this being one of the features of the order.

Also arrangements are being perfected whereby Mrs. Horner and her two children will be given a home at Mooseheart, where the children will be educated and taught a trade.
